Train tunnel transformed by students from St. Philip School

One of the train tunnels at Saskatoon's Kinsmen Park Rides now has some new tenants – bunches and bunches of bees, ants, caterpillars and butterflies that were crafted by students from St. Philip School.

Last fall, the City of Saskatoon asked local schools to submit their ideas for decorating the tunnel and St. Philip's "Gone Buggy" theme was chosen. With $500 from the City for materials, children from kindergarten to grade 8 created the bugs, along with the flowers and foliage for the critters' new home.

School staff put the colourful display up at the park last week, and now students are paying a visit to enjoy the rides and see how the tunnel turned out.

Media are also invited to come get a look at the tunnel's new display. (Park staff know media may attend – please let them know you're there so they can help you out.)
